DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

1. The drawings are objected to as failing to comply with 37 CFR 1.84(p)(4) because reference character "108" in Figure 1 has been used to designate both "category state" and "provider." A proposed drawing correction or corrected drawings are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Specification

2. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities:
 - Please see at least page 9, line 7: consumer "102" is labeled "202" in Figure 2,
 - Please see at least page 12, line 8: package request processor "106" is labeled "206" in Figure 2,
 - Please see at least page 12, line 10: reference character "304" depicted in Figure 3 is missing,
 - Please see at least page 13, lines 11-12: reference character "506" depicted in Figure 5 is missing.Appropriate correction is required.

3. The specification has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification.

Claim Objections

4. Claim 5 is objected to because of the following informalities: typographical error on line 2, "provides" was interpreted as "providers" for examination purposes. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requires of this title.

5. Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 USC 101 because the claimed invention is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

The claims are directed to a process that does nothing more than manipulate an abstract idea. Mere recitation in the preamble (i.e., intended use) or mere implication of employing a machine or article of manufacture to perform some or all of the recited steps does not confer statutory subject matter to an otherwise abstract idea. There is no practical application in the technological arts. For subject matter to be statutory, the claimed process must be limited to a practical application of the abstract idea or mathematical algorithm in the technological arts. See In re Alappat 33 F.3d at 1543, 31 USPQ2d at 1556-57 (quoting Diamond V. Diehr, 450 U.S. at 192, 209 USPQ at 10). A claim is limited to a practical application when the method, as claimed, produces a concrete, tangible and useful result: i.e. the method recites a step or act of producing something that is concrete, tangible and useful. See AT&T v. Excel Communications Inc., 172 F.3d at 1358, 50 USPQ2d at 1452.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

6. Claims 1-4 and 6-7 are rejected under 35 USC 102(e) as being anticipated by Andrews (patent number 6,285,986).

Andrews teaches all the limitations of Claims 1-4 and 6-7. For example, Andrews discloses a system and method of bundling products and services from one or more providers at a bundle server in communication over a network with vendors of products and services, the bundle server providing information on the bundled package of items (e.g. bundle profile), and receiving a request to purchase a bundle package from a participating member (please see at least abstract; Fig. 1 (10, 24, 26-32, 34-40); col. 2, line 59 through col. 4, line 44). Andrews discloses vendors posting items available for bundling with other vendors via the bundle server (see at least col. 5, lines 25-30), shipping the purchased bundle package to the member (please note this examiner interprets vendor actions of shipping product to a member as providing confirmation of the purchase) (see at least col. 5, lines 34-37), and all parties receiving compensation (see at least col. 12, lines 32-34).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

- 7. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 USC 103(a) as being unpatentable over Andrews (patent number 6,285,986), in view Official Notice (regarding commission structure).

Andrews teaches all the above as noted under the 102(e) rejection and further teaches selling agents using the system to sell bundle packages (see at least col. 13, lines 16-22) and all parties involved in selling a bundle package being compensated, but does not specifically disclose a commission structure.

This examiner takes the position that it is old and well-known that sellers of goods and services are compensated by being paid a commission based upon old and well-known commission structures (e.g. a percentage of gross sales, a percentage of net sales (sales price minus costs), or combination). Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at time of the invention to modify the system and method of Andrews to disclose a commission structure as taught by Official Notice, in order to more fully inform potential providers how they will be compensated, and thereby attract providers to the bundled package service.

8. Claims 8-13 are rejected under 35 USC 103(a) as being unpatentable over Andrews (patent number 6,285,986), in view of Walker et al. (Paper #5, IDS, patent number 6,138,105).

Andrews teaches all the above as noted under the 102(e) rejection and further teaches the bundle server prompting the vendor for item suggested retail price and the item price if included in a bundled package, or minimum auction price if included in an auctioned bundle (see at least col. 8, lines 13-21), but do not disclose specifics on bundle pricing schemes. Walker et al. teach bundled packaging of goods and services and pricing of bundled packages. Walker et al. further teach:

- bundling French fries (X: examiner's notation for regular retail price of French fries) and soda (Y: examiner's notation for regular retail price of

Art Unit: 3625

- soda) at a single price that is less than the sum of the prices of the individual products (bundled single price $< (X+Y)$) (see col. 1, lines 33-37),
- bundling of product X (product ID 1) with product Y (product ID 2) where at least the bundled price of X is 10% less than retail price of X by a predetermined percentage (see at least Fig. 5 (506); col. 6, lines 35-62).

Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at time of the invention to modify the system and method of Andrews to disclose a bundled pricing method as taught by Walker et al., in order to provide a pricing incentive to the consumer, and thereby increase sales.

Andrews teaches all the above as noted under the 102(e) rejection and further teaches each vendor providing a suggested retail price and establishing an item price if included in a bundled package, but do not specifically disclose the item being less than the item suggested retail price. Walker et al. teach all the above as noted under the 103(a) rejection and teach setting an item price included in a bundle lower than the retail price of the item by a predetermined percentage to create a purchasing incentive (see at least Fig. 5 (506); col. 6, lines 35-62). Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at time of the invention to modify the system and method of Andrews to use a predetermined percentage to compute a lower item price as taught by Walker et al., in order to provide a pricing incentive to the consumer, and thereby increase sales.
